The Means for Properly Raising the Widow's Sons Steadily Increasing No Rubbish for Sale In the Temple.

The picture the Masonic fair presented last evening was one that partook of brilliancy, richness of color and joyousness. It was a happy-looking crowd of well-dressed, wellpleased people, who, having laid down their labors for the week, were whiling away the hours allotted for pleasure in a seemingly pleasing manner. Many of the social stars in Bichmond's fashionable firmament were present, and in all there were nearly a thous-

It's great fun for such well-disposed couples, but rather rough on the hundreds of pretty girls and men who have not been paired off in that happy fashion. THE PROGRAMMY.

The programme last evening was admirably endered. The Howitzer band continued its torius mo efforts with considerable success, and the nerves of various and sundry people suffered in consequence. Miss Generally had been a pleasing manner, and Mrs. I almweiler sang two delightful solos. There were other numbers on the programme that were equally enjoyable. '(ralatea' proves to be one of the best attractions at the fair. A very pretty young lady of this city assumes the role of Pygmahan's lover, and it is a clever illusion to see her change from her natural self into a marble bust. Then the bust merges itself into a decanter of Catawba wine, and the wine changes into a skeleton, then back to the very lady.

King's Soloman's Temple is another pretty attraction at the fair. It was made in strict accordance with the measurements laid down in the Book of Books, and is a splendid piece of workmanship. FOR TO-MORROW.

JUSTICE JOHN'S COURT.

The Great Ruler Dispensed Equity in His Own Peculiar Way-The Cases.

At the third hour and in his own peculiar way he came upon the throne to mete out equity to those who had transgressed the laws and in whose hearts there was no good thing His domains extended over all that part of the east side of the river from Rocketts to Holly-wood and as far north as the branch and Brook avenue, even to Jackson ward and the

The entertainment last evening was enjoyable; at least to those who were near enough to the stage to hear. While some several hundred of the individuals listened and enjoyed, the men and madens in the rear chattered and taiked and laughed like automatic dolls, and the people who really wanted to hear the vocal efforts and the

Rosa in her class was fair to look upon, but like many of her sort she had sinned before this people and had strayed from the straight and narrow way. Like many others she fell by the wayside and was taken in by one of the guards. She found no favor in the eyes of the Justice, who recovered her to pay into the coders of the mired her to pay into the coffers of the

Then there was brought before him one Bessie White, who had come from a great distance and taken up her abode with one Cora Drake. There came into the house of Cora a man from a great city, even Lynchburg, and while there lost the sum of $10. Cora accused Bessie of having the money, and she was arrested. There was no proof of her guilt and she was dismissed with the understanding that she leave the city forthwith.

This did greatly vex the Justice, and his heart did wax sore against these people, for their iniquity was great in his sight, and he did long to punish them as they deserved, but he whose oath was to convict was himself a felon, and his testimony was not sufficient and the case was dismissed.

Ed. Bentley, after the manner of young men who haven't anything to do and an abundance of time in which to complete the contract, did loaf around the corner of Seventeenth and Main streets and for the want of enteenth and Main streets and for the want of other occupation did fall upon Saioni Moshi with a left-hander that did knock out the representative from sunny Italy. He was fined $2.50, but as he was short of this world's goods he was put into the prisoners' pen. Afterwards the great heart of the ruler was moved to pity and he let the young man go.

J. M. Pace found no favor with the ruler, for he let his apprentage and in an for he let his angry passions rise and in an unguarded moment did chastise James Wright, a youth of tender years and dark complexion, who had vexed him with his much talking. He was assessed $2.50 for his

WAR SCENES.

A Grand Production to be Given for the Benefit of the Monument Fund.

There will be a grand production of war scenes at Mozart Hall on May 19th and 20th for the benefit of the Stuart monument fund. Every phase of camp life from 1861 to 1865 will be given in the most life-like manner. I was told by one of the committee last evening that they are determined, regardless of the cost and trouble, to make the exhibition the most realistic and attractive entertainment of the kind ever held. Colonel H. C. Jones will have command of the military forces, and the have command of the military forces, and the grand finale will be a grand battle scene, in which two hundred men will take part. During the delay between acts battle scenes and portraiture of distinguished officers and gallant men of the rank and file of the bravest army the world ever saw will be displayed on canvas by storeopticon light. Dr. W. H. Taylor and Major Daniel will have special charge of this feature. Mr. Polk Miller and Colonel C. AND TELLS AWFULLY BIG STORIES.

Has Fooled the Y. M. C. A. People, the Tug-Boat Captain and is Now Worrying the Police-May Go to the Reformatory.

On Sunday last THE TIMES published a story about a twelve-year-old boy, who had been turned over to State Secretary H. O. Williams, of the Young Men's Christian Association, on his way to Richmond by the conductor of a train of the Richmond and Danville railroad. The boy, when brought before Secretary Candlish at the Association building, gave his name as Henry Myers and told a long story about havng been kidnapped from his parents in New York city about three years ago and brought to Martinsville. Va. He explained how he had been set adrift by a Mr. Isaac Stanley in that town and started for New York to find his parents. Secretary Candlish provided a temporary home for the boy and in the meantime telegraphed to Martinsville. but ascertained that no person by the name of Isaac Stanley could be found in that SKIPPED. On Monday morning it was ascertained that the boy had quietly left his lodging place and could not be found. On Wednesday afternoon Mr. Candlish received a telephone message from a gentleman who had read the account in Sunday's Times and asked for further information. He informed Mr. Candlish that a boy asswaring the description given in that a boy answering the description given in THE TIMES was on board of the tugboat Petit, which plies between this city and several points down the river.

Mr. Candish at once made an effort to secure the boy. Several trips to the wharf in Rocketts proved to be futile, for the tug could not be found. Yesterday afternoon he succeeded in reaching the wharf in time. The boy be-gan to cry as soon as he noticed Mr. Candish and expressed his unwillingness to go with him. He said that Mr. Candish did not believe his story and that therefore he did not want to have anything to do with him.

NOW IT'S JONES.

Henry Myers or Henry Jones, as he called himself on board of the tug, had told practi-cally the same story which he narrated be-fore. The only change which he made was to the effect that his parents had lived in Northe effect that his parents had lived in Norfolk instead of New York, and that they had died recently. When questioned by Mr.
Candlish why he called himself Jones he said that his name was Henry Jones Myers. He expressed a desire to remain on board of the boat, but was told by the captain that they would not keep him any longer. He, therefore, concluded to go with Mr. Candlish, who took him to Major Poe's office, where he was closely questioned by office, where he was closely questioned by several police officers, but did not reveal any-thing that could lead to the discovery of kis identity. He was next taken to the Mayor's thing that could lead to the discovery of an identity. He was next taken to the Mayor's office. Mayor Ellyson talked to him for three-quarters of an hour, but all that he could elicit besides his former statement was that he knew a certain physician near Martinsville. Va. He was then taken by Mr. Candlish to a boarding-house, where he was given a bath and dinner and finally turned over to the custody of the officers of the Second police-station, who will care for him until Monday. until Monday.

In the meantime Mayor Ellyson has written to the physician near Martinsville, whose name had been mentioned by the boy, and if no satisfactory reply can be obtained the boy will be turned over to Major Robert Stiles to be placed in the reformatory school at Laurel small amount of excitement among the music lovers of Virginia. The sale of seats is not confined to Richmond alone, but from points as far away as Atlanta, Ga., applications have been received for seats for this occasion.

So far the sale has been decidedly encouraging to the management of the Academy and very many places have been disposed of. A good number of very desirable seats are left, however, but it is expected that by the date of the performance the house will be entirely sold out. The railroad companies have or anized several theatre parties, one numbering thirty, and the seats for these parties will be assigned by Tuesday next. For the convenience of his patrons Mr. Cahill, the manager of the Mozart, has decided to keep the boxoffice open on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings until 9 o'clock.

The continued rain of the week just past has been truly most unfavorable for the sale of

and yet the past week shows again another increase in our Millinery business. This is due to the fact that our store is now admitted to be Millinery Headquarters. Such an enormous stock of High-Class Headgear and such beautiful and varied designs have hearetofore been unknown in Richmond and our extreme low prices win the confidence and good-will of our customers.

Our buyer, who is now in the market, is daily supplying us with the latest ideas and Novelties of this and foreign markets in
